

Let God arise in majesty

The second tune

(alternate barring)

Archbishop Matthew Parker (1504-1575), Psalm 68

Thomas Tallis (c.1505-1585)

Meane (part 1 of 4)

Let God a - rise, in ma - je - sty, and scat-t'red be His foes:
But let the just be glad in this, and joy in God His sight;
O blest be God, who day by day doth heap His gifts on us;

yea, flee they all his sight in face, to him which hate - ful goes.
for God's great pow'r, and sta - ble truth in mirth let them de - light.
this God is God of all our health, in pow'r most glo - ri - ous.

As smoke is driv'n, and comes to naught, re - pulse their ty - ran - ny;
O sing to God, sound out His Name, see him ye mag - ni - fy;
He is our God, ev'n God, I say, all health and wealth to shape;

at face of fire as war doth melt, God's face the ___ bad might flee.
He rid'th on heav'ns, His name is ___ God, in him re - joice ye high.
yea death is ruled, by God the Lord, whose dint by ___ him we scape.
